GRAY EXPECTS GOOD SEASON

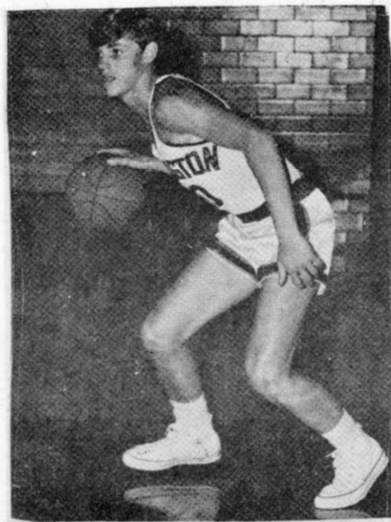

DON GRANNON

CHARLES CHAPMAN

DENNIS ARNOLD

TERRY BUHR

TIM ARMES

A successful basketball season is expected by Coach Kenny Gray.

The Hatchets don't seem to have any height this year so to win we need pass control, running ability and shooting.

David Abel, Tim Armes, Charles Chapman, Neal Cannon, and Doug Lemmon, seniors are back with us this year.

The following are starting players picked by the Ink-Ovation; Tim Armes and Terry Buhr, guards, Charles Chapman center, with Don Grannon and Denny Arnold as forwards.

ACROSS THE OCEAN BLUE--This is a typical picture of the parking lot north of the school building.

In the October 27 issue of Ink-Ovation, an editorial was published concerning the condition of the school's parking lot, or to some, the National Guard Armory parking lot.

Since that time, as far as Ink-Ovation knows no action has been taken. The parking lot now has went from bad to worse.

As you can see in the picture above, it has practically turned into a lake, especially after a rain. School officials and administrators have encouraged students to park in the lot to avoid students from parking in other people's drive-ways, next to fire hydrants, etc, but you don't see them parking in that swamp. Most students, especially boys, take pride in their cars and try to keep them clean and shiny, but one trip through the lot and it's as dirty as ever!

But say then, that you park your car in the lot and don't get it dirty. You really think that you've accomplished something until you step out of it. After a rain it is not uncommon to plant both feet into three inches of mud and water.

This not only creates a problem for students but for custodians as well. After a student enters the building the mud on their shoes is tracked all over the building.

Ink-Ovation urges whoever is in charge of the parking lot to try to improve the conditions of it. Gravel is not so expensive that it cannot be hauled in.

KINMAN HAS OPTIMISTIC VIEWS

Principal David Kinman was asked his opinion of this year and it's outlook. One remark: "Basically, I'm very well pleased with the first few weeks of school. I hope the same spirit and enthusiasm will continue."

School spirit is very important among students. When asked what he thought of it, Kinman replied, "Students' spirit seems to be very high!"

This year many successful activities have been completed; for example, the homecoming parade, dance, and pep sessions.

Kinman commented about the pep session: "All of the pep sessions were tremendous."

"School this year seems to be running well. It seems that there is a higher degree of cooperation and harmony among the faculty and students than in past years."

By MARY FITZGERALD

In my opinion the spirit shown at the Pep Session is a big fake. The reason most of the students yell and cheer is to get the Spirit Stick. These students aren't backing their team, they're backing their class.

Most students could care less if our team wins or loses. These are the students who like Pep Sessions because they get out of class.

It's good to have a Pep Session to get the spirit aroused, but the reason behind the spirit is wrong.

We have a good team; and I imagine that if the student body showed as much enthusiasm at a game as they do during the Pep Session, our team would make us proud of them.

Another flaw in the school spirit is the electing of cheerleaders.

They are chosen because of looks and popularity instead of talent. I'm not saying these people can't fulfill their duties. What I am saying is they should be chosen for their ability and talent.

"I can see that most of you have what it takes to face the world of tomorrow — gasmasks."

ELIZABETHIAN PERIOD

A thorough study of the Elizabethan Period during the reign of Henry VIII of England is being presented by senior students in their literature classes. They are investigating events which took place in the field of art, drama, history, philosophy, music, poetry, architecture, religion, and politics. After two weeks of "free study," individual or panel reports are given. After the reports, students will study intensively the literature of this period which include sonnets, Shakespeare's Macbeth, and the drama, Anne of a Thousand Days, depicting the life of Henry VIII.

COLLEGE NIGHT IS SUCCESS

Colleges, universities, and business schools from around the state were represented Wednesday night at the annual College Night.

The students that attended were given a choice of 2 colleges whose sessions they would like to attend. Each of these sessions was 40 minutes long.

At these sessions, the college representatives explained facts about the college such as admission requirements and procedures. They also provided catalogs, application forms and other materials for use by students, parents, and guidance personnel.

The purpose of College Night was to help students and their parents develop a better understanding of the schools of their choice by providing accurate and up-to-date facts.

POEM of the MONTH

When're I take a long look around me,
I find a world impressioned with a frown
And there's a war from sea to burning sea
Always trying to put the people down.
Do you suppose we just did not think twice?
Time passes on, yet we're at war this day.
And now we have to pay that monstrous price
For what's happened to this old world today.
We do not always live in sweet springtime
And we will never live without hate,
But we ought to try hard in the meantime
To do something before it is too late.
Where is the answer? Is it in one's heart
Or do we keep on tearing our world apart?

UNDERSTANDING TODAY'S YOUTH

Parents of WHS students had a chance to visit the school last Tuesday night, Parents' Night.

Dr. Wayne Perkins from the University of Evansville was the guest speaker. The topic of his speech dealt with the generation gap.

The WHS Choral Department presented a musical program based on the theme for the night, "Understanding Today's Youth."

After the program, refreshments, provided by the Home Economics Department, were served in the cafeteria.

The school was also open to parents each day last week from 1-3 pm. A filmstrip was shown in the cafeteria followed by a tour of the building by selected Student Council members.

American Education Week was October 25-31.
